JACKSON MILL SOLD.

Passed into Hands of Consolidated Water Power Co.

On Saturday a sale was made by which the Jackson Milling Company's property in this city became the property of the Consolidated Water Power company.

The sale includes the real estate and mill belonging to the company in the city of Grand Rapids and all the riparian rights and water frontage as well as an island in the river north of the city known as No. 9. The present company will be given about two months to close its business, when, unless another company is organized to take up the business the mill will be closed. It is possible, however, that a company will be organized for this purpose.

The sale of this property to the Consolidated company means a large step toward the settlement of the matter so that the much talked-of dam can be built. It is also expected that a decision in the Nash case against the company will be rendered inside of a few weeks and that no matter how the decision is rendered it will be possible to come to a settlement so that the improvements can be prosecuted. Mr. T. E. Nash has expressed a willingness to lend his aid to a speedy settlement, and it was largely through his efforts that a deal was made between the milling company and the Water Power company, so that no further litigation is looked for from either side.

Should this matter come to a close as anticipated our people are to be congratulated, as it will mean a large amount of improvements during the next few years. Work on the proposed dam will probably be commenced this season and within a very short time.

LINE A SUCCESS.

New Toll Line has Already Proven Itself a Paying Venture.

The telephone toll line between this city, Marshfield and Pittsville has already proven to be a success from a financial point of view and the company have started to extend their connections.

It was supposed when the line was established that Marshfield, being the largest town on the system, would be the greatest user of the line, but such has not been found to be the case. Up to date Pittsville is in the lead with Grand Rapids second.

The line will be extended to Babcock and Bethel as was at first intended and in the spring a branch will be built to Progress and Vesdum. The company has also purchased the line between this city and Vesper owned by Goldsworthy & Baily and in the spring this will be rebuilt and changed from a grounded line to a metallic circuit. The line between Hanson and Pittsville has also been purchased, but just what will be done with it has not been decided. It is possible that this may be changed to a "farmers' line. That is, it will be possible for farmers along the line to have phones at a low rate and they will be enabled to talk along the length of the line without extra charge further than their regular rental. This line will probably be left as a grounded line for the present at least. The buying of the Vesper line will make a toll line of this branch, but it is thought that by putting it in first class shape and making a metallic circuit of it the service will be enough better so that patrons will be willing to pay for the use of it.

That the venture has proved a success is a good thing for the public in general as well as the projectors as it will enable the latter to extend their lines and make improvements and thus give the patrons a constantly improving service.

Skidding Extraordinary.

On Monday two teamsters employed by the John Arpin Lumber company did some tall work in the line of skidding, following being the result of their labors:

John Christianson of Arpin skidded 235 logs or a total of 69,450 feet.

Mick Gockey of Hanson put up 231 logs or a total of 57,620 feet.

The average of a days work is from twenty to twenty-five thousand feet of pine, so it can readily be seen that the men were busy a greater part of the day. The logs were good ones, averaging three and two-thirds logs to a thousand feet. Considerable rivalry had existed between the men for some time and it was decided to settle matters on Monday. Mr. Christianson winning out by a difference of 11,830 feet. Neither man need be ashamed of his days work, however.

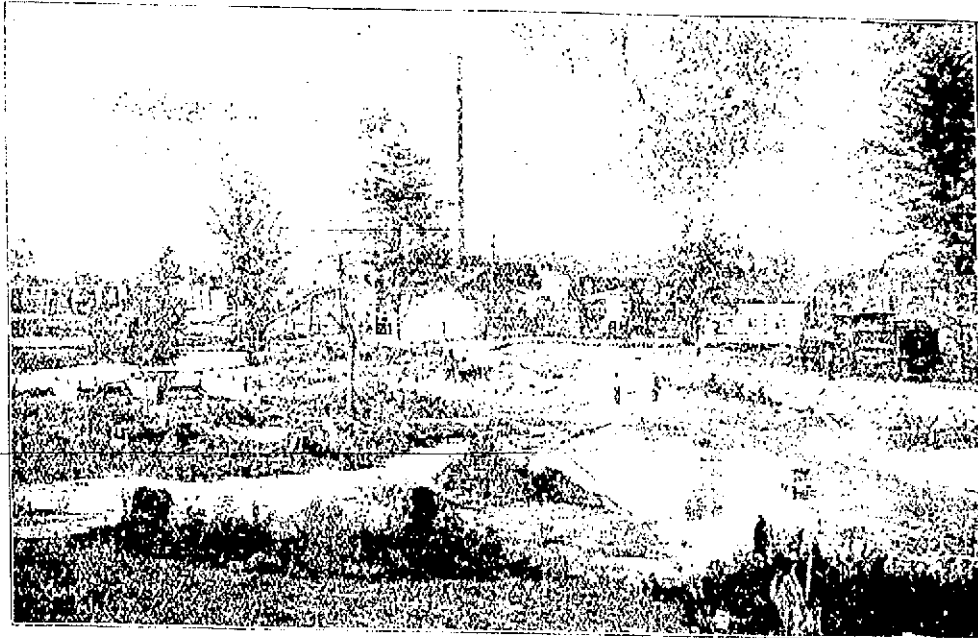

For Sale or Trade.

The undersigned offers for sale or to trade the following real and personal property: 35 acres of land near the paper mill, south Centralia, 15 acres cleared, good for strawberries or garden, good barn 44x32, chicken house, corn shed, hog pen, good well, two horses, 4 and 5 years old, 3 short horn heifers 2½ and 1 year old, 50 chickens, 200 egg incubator, 1 wagon, 1 buggy, 2 sleds, 2 heavy double harnesses, 1 light double harness, 1 single light harness, 1 mower, 1 plow and other farming implements, seed oats, potatoes, etc. Will be sold in a lump or singly. Gust Neiman, box 126, South Side.

For Sale Cheap.

A two story frame house of four rooms and four lots 51x135, with well, wooded, nice lawn, shade trees, etc., on Milwaukee street, can be bought for $600, on account of owner leaving town. This is worth investigating. Call at the Tribune office for further information.

ARPIN HARDWOOD LUMBER CO. MILL AT ATLANTA.

The above is a halftone picture of the Arpin Hardwood Lumber Company's mill located at Atlanta, two miles from Bruce, on the Soo line. The capacity of the mill is about 100,000 feet per day, and it is a very complete establishment, being fitted with band and resaws, heading and stave machinery and has lath and shingle departments. There is also a planing mill and all the machinery for turning out a high grade of hardwood flooring, and there are dry kilns. The mill employs about 150 hands and there is enough timber tributary to the plant to operate it for thirty years.

During the past winter the Arpins have been doing some extensive logging operations at Bruce, Arpin and Kennau, the aggregate of their output at these points being something over 30,000,000 feet of pine and hardwood logs. At Bruce there have been three camps going and they have put in about 10,000,000 feet. At Kennau two camps have been operated with an output of 6,000,000, while at Arpin there is about 14,000,000 feet of logs, largely high grade pine. At Arpin there will probably be only one more season's work, but a large amount of the land owned by the company is being bought up by settlers and much of the land brings from $12 to $15 per acre. The building of the Northwestern road near this point has also added to the sales of late.

The company has a Decker log loading machine in use at their northern stations that has proven a great institution. It is built so that the logs are handled by steam and very expeditiously, and the machine can also be used as a steam shovel or a pile driver. The machine cost the company $5,000, but has proven so useful in the work they have to do that the investment is considered a profitable one. A telephone line is also in course of construction from Chippewa Falls to Bruce and the Arpin company has taken a fourth interest in this enterprise. Settlers are also rapidly coming in near Bruce and the Arpin company has sold considerable land to home seekers. The soil is a light clay loam and thought to be peculiarly adapted to the raising of tobacco. The company has established an experimental farm near Bruce, which is in charge of M. T. A. Rideout. By this method the company hopes to demonstrate what crops can be profitably raised on the land there and thus be of assistance to settlers who come from some other state and are not conversant with the peculiarities of the soil in that part of Wisconsin.

The company has about seven miles of railroad built, which starts at Bruce and running through Atlanta, two miles distant, continues in a northerly direction through the company's land.

During the past winter the company has had in its employ about 650 men, and while work has been plentiful and wages good the men have pretty generally shown a disposition to stay at work.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

About one o'clock Monday night the house of James Welch on High street was discovered to be on fire and the structure was entirely consumed, and only a small portion of the furniture in the dwelling was saved.

The public was apprized of the fire by the blowing of the electric light plant whistle, but before the fire company had arrived on the scene the entire building was a mass of flames and nothing could be done toward saving the structure. A high wind prevailed at the time and the weather was bitter cold and it was therefore very difficult for the fire department to work, but there were no other buildings near enough to cause any danger. It is not known how the fire originated and it had gained considerable headway before discovered, so that only a part of the furniture could be removed. There was an insurance of $10,000 on the building and contents.

The building was one of the oldest in town, having been erected in 1856, so that the loss on the structure is fully covered by the insurance. As Mr. Welch is a poor man with a large family he can ill afford to stand the loss of his furniture.

There was some criticism regarding the time it took the fire brigade to make their appearance on the scene of operations, but this is usual in the case of volunteer companies and can only be expected where the fire alarm system is as crude as here. It is certain that had there been any buildings in close proximity to the burning structure there would have been great difficulty in protecting them from the flames.

Candidates for County Judge.

Attorney Wm. J. Conway of this city has announced himself as a non-partisan candidate for the office of county judge. Mr. Conway is an exceptionally bright young man who is well known to the people of this city and county, and there is no doubt of his ability to acceptably fill the position should he be elected. Mr. Conway is a graduate of our high school and later graduated from the state university and law school. Since his graduation from the latter he has practiced his profession in this city and has proven himself to be worthy the confidence of the people. William has many friends in this vicinity who will be glad of the chance to show their appreciation of his ability by voting for him. The only other aspirant to the office is Judge John A. Gaynor, the present incumbent. Both men are thoroughly competent and reliable.

Farm for Sale or Exchange.

Farm known as the Fred Podawiltz place, on Four Mile creek at county line, 187 acres of land including 80 acres of hay marsh, 60 acres cleared, good buildings, good fences, plenty of wood and good pasture. Convenient location, six miles from Grand Rapids. EDWARD LYNCH.

A Piano Recital.

Miss Nellie Schnabel gave a piano recital at the residence of Mrs. A. L. Ridgman on Thursday evening. Those taking part in the program were Agnes Daly, Blanch Cleveland, Mildred Dixon, Iva Akey, Beulah Scott, Mattie Dudley, Myrtle Faux, Ethel Peterson, Beulah Chandos, Kate Kellorg, Georgia and Edna Ridgman. A very pleasant evening was spent, all of the young people taking part being pupils of Miss Schnabel's.

High School Notes.

Senior class meeting last Tuesday after school. A majority of the class opposed having an orator and so a number of speakers were selected from the class of twenty-four to appear Friday night May 31.

The Junior classes of east and west sides in a joint meeting to make arrangements for a Junior reception and prom to be held along the first of May. Particulars later.

The senior German class takes up this term Goethe's "Hermann and Dorothea," which will keep them busy until the close of school.

Tuition for spring term is now due. Please secure your certificates of admission as soon as possible.

Miss Letty Courtney visited school last Monday morning and Miss Goldie Short Tuesday afternoon.

Church Sociable.

The church sociable at C. F. Kellogg's place Tuesday night was attended by the bitterly cold weather that prevailed that day and night. Those present report a good time, however.

ASK FOR COMMISSION.

Marshfield Is Dissatisfied with Last Assessment.

Marshfield News: The committee appointed by the common council some weeks ago to investigate the apportionment of taxes as made by the county board, made a report to the council last Monday evening, as follows:

To the Mayor and Board of Aldermen: Your committee to whom was referred the last apportionment of taxes as made by county board of equalization, beg leave to report:

That without imputing to the board of equalization any intention to discriminate against the city of Marshfield, we are of the opinion that a decided injustice was done to this city in said last apportionment of taxes. It seems that assessment at full value of property does not mean the same thing in different places and the board of equalization was probably unwilling to believe that our last local assessment, as made by our city assessors, was on as high a range of values as was actually the case.

Your committee also are of the opinion that the board of equalization failed to place a proper estimate upon a very large amount of property owned by large manufacturing plants in the southern part of the county. These plants have a value about equal to the full value of the real property of the city of Marshfield, and their partial and almost total exemption from taxation, and the inadequate estimate of them by the board of equalization, is a decided injustice to this city, and has the effect of throwing upon our community a burden of taxation which does not rightly belong to us.

We, therefore, advise that the city attorney be instructed to apply to the circuit court for the appointment of commissioners as provided by law, for a revision of the last equalization of taxes as made by the county board.

Dated Feb. 28th, 1901.
W. H. RODDIS,
M. G. FLICKENSTEIN,
E. C. PORS,
Committee.

The council thereupon passed the following resolution, which was offered by Alderman Roddis:

Be it Resolved, By the mayor and common council of the city of Marshfield, that feeling aggrieved by the action or decision of the county board of supervisors of Wood county, in regard to the equalization of the valuation of the real estate in said county, which was made in the year 1900, under section No. 1073 of the revised statutes of the state of Wisconsin, do hereby instruct and authorize the city attorney of the city of Marshfield to make application to the circuit judge of the county of Wood for the appointment of three commissioners to review such action or decision and to examine and determine what sum upon the one hundred dollars should be added to or deducted from the aggregate valuation of real property as was made by such county board in order to produce a just relation between all the valuations of the real property in said county according as such city may be aggrieved as to real property, according to the provisions of section 1077a of the revised statutes of the state of Wisconsin.

Advancement Meeting.

There was a meeting of the Wisconsin Valley Advancement association at Merrill on Thursday of last week and while the meeting was not very largely attended owing to many of the members being detained elsewhere by business, there seems to have been considerable enthusiasm displayed by those present.

One of the principal matters discussed was the proposed electric railway between the village of Nekoosa and Eagle River. One of the most enthusiastic ones for this project is Wm. Bradley, the lumber king of Tomahawk. This gentleman thinks that the plan would not only be feasible but that it would prove a paying investment for capital. A letter was read by one of the members present from a New York broker which stated that the capital for the road was forthcoming, all the projectors asking being that the towns in the valley give the road the support it would be entitled to.

The letter was received by Mr. Plummer of Wausau and after reading it he said:

"It seems to me that this proposition from these moneyed men of New York is a fair one and the owner our people co-operate in pushing this matter to a successful culmination, just that much sooner will our future welfare become defined. I know the scheme is a feasible one and I want you newspaper men to impress it upon your people. I have traversed this river on lumber rafts when Merrill was but a few scattered shanties—she was Jenny Bull then. I know this river as well as I know your main streets and I helped to survey them. Mr. Bradley and I have seen this valley grow from its infancy and now in the heyday of its youth we hope for its grand future. Let the people of Merrill, of Wausau, and of all the cities from Nekoosa to Eagle River rise up and say, 'We will have this valley electric road,' and then we will have it."

It was decided that the March meeting of the association be dispensed with in order to allow absent members sufficient time to return. The next meeting will be held at Tomahawk in April.

In the matter of the estate of John F. Charles, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of F. E. Keltner, administrator de bonis non of the estate of John F. Charles of Port Edwards, Wood County, Wisconsin, deceased, representing among other things, that the said deceased died seized of certain real estate therein described, and that it is necessary to sell the same to pay the debts of said deceased and paying for license to sell the same; and it appearing to the court that it is necessary to sell said real estate for that purpose.

It is ORDERED, that said petition be heard at a special term of said county court, to be held in and for said county, at the court house in the city of Grand Rapids, on the second Tuesday being the 20th day of April, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock A. M.

It is FURTHER ORDERED, that this order be published at least four successive weeks, before said day fixed for the hearing of said petition, in the Grand Rapids Tribune, a weekly newspaper, published at the city of Grand Rapids, in said county, and that a copy of said order be served personally on all persons interested in said real estate and residing in this county, at least twenty days before such day.

Dated March 5th A. D. 1901.

By the court JOHN A. GAYNOR,
County Judge.

J. W. COCHRAN, Atty for Administrator.

The house recently vacated by S. L. Alexander and family will soon be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bennett.

On Tuesday Eugene Duncan sold his house and lot to Geo. M. Hill. Mr. Duncan may go to Louisiana in the spring.

There will be a special Guild meeting at MacKinnon's on Monday afternoon. All members are requested to be present.

The new paper-making firm, Fleckenstein and Lesser, have ordered their machinery and will begin making paper about June 1st.—Marshfield Times.

—Father Nugent at the Opera house Monday evening. 35 and 50 cents.

The Kellogg Bros. Lumber company have during the past week opened a lumber yard at Almond. This makes six yards that the company is now operating.

Sam Church and family will move into the living rooms over Bogger's furniture store as soon as Mr. Bogger is able to remove to his new home on High street.

E. C. Ketchum has been engaged since Wednesday last in cutting ice on the river south of the bridge. He expects to take out two or three hundred cords at this place.

The appraisers completed their work on all the tracts of land on east side of river on Wednesday and since that time have been waiting for orders concerning the property on the west side.

Stevens Point Journal: The Wisconsin River Pulp & Paper Co. is now using elm logs to make paper of and the farmers from the northern part of the county are now hauling large amounts of that timber.

It is probable that an attempt will be made to organize a lodge of the Elks in this city in the near future. There are three members of the order in the city and it would only take a very little hustling to secure enough members to organize a lodge.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Some one has declined a church fair as "a function where a man spends more money than he can afford to for things he does not want, to please people he does not like, for the benefit of the heathens who are better off left alone."

The big plate glass window in the drug department of the Johnson & Hill company's store was badly cracked by the heavy gale of Sunday. The glass had been cracked before but it was found necessary to brace up the glass with boards in order to prevent it from caving in.

County Superintendent Len held examinations in this city on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, 24 taking the examinations. On Tuesday evening he went to Marshfield and put in the balance of the week there in a similar manner. Next week he will be at Pittville.

—Father Nugent at the Opera house Monday evening. 35 and 50 cents.

Stevens Point Gazette: S. A. Spafford & Son, who have been logging in Marathon county west of Shantytown, finished work last Thursday. From 16 to 20 men were employed at putting in stove bolts, piling, ties and pine logs, all of which will be shipped by rail to Grand Rapids.

Rev. A. Petterson was at City Point on Wednesday and held religious services there that evening. The ladies have organized an aid society at that place and it is possible that the reverend gentleman will commence to make regular trips there in the near future.

The Tribune is in receipt of a letter from E. C. Underwood of Wausau asking if Grand Rapids would go into the Baseball league which it is proposed to organize among the towns in this locality. Anyone who feels interested in the matter can find all the particulars by addressing Mr. Underwood.

The subject for discourse by the Rev. W. A. Peterson at the M. E. church on Sunday morning will be "The Blackman. Has he any Rights which a White man is bound to Respect." In the evening "Self Deception." On Sunday morning, March 17 there will be communion services.

Justice Cooper this week received a letter from C. P. Heiser, attorney for the Northwestern road with instructions to proceed with the condemnation proceedings between this city and Nekoosa. This would indicate that the deal for the Marshfield road had not been closed despite the report of last week.

—Father Nugent at the opera house Monday, March 11. 25c and 50c. Don't miss him.

The bill authorizing the state to loan Portage county $30,000 with which to refund a portion of its railroad indebtedness, passed the senate on Tuesday, and only awaits the signature of the governor to become a law. As soon as the necessary preliminaries can be arranged a special session of the county board will be held and arrangements for securing the money will be perfected.

An appreciative audience gathered at the opera house Wednesday evening to see Frank Keenan in "A Poor Relation" and those who attended the play were not disappointed. Mr. Keenan has the ability of mingling the pathetic with the humorous in a manner that is seldom attained. Those who did not attend certainly missed one of the best shows that has ever visited this city as every person in the company showed himself thoroughly competent to fill his position.

Dr. V. P. Norton visited a herd of cattle owned by Daly and Sampson last week and found only one animal affected with anthrax. This animal was isolated from the herd and the remainder were vaccinated to prevent a spread of the disease. The stable in which the animals have been kept was also disinfected and no further trouble is anticipated. State veterinary Edward Roberts of Janesville was notified of the existence of the disease and should there be any further trouble he will visit the scene of action and give his professional advice.

Results. Immediate and lasting. Before and after trying other remedies use Rocky Mountain Tea this month. "I will keep you well all summer. A great spring blessing. JOHNSON & HILL CO.

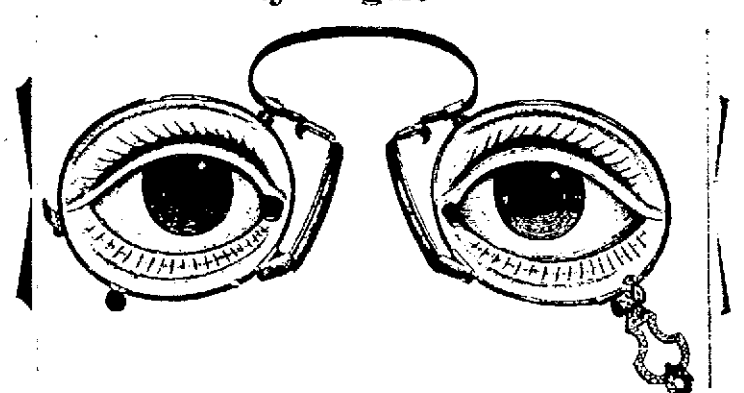

On Wednesday a man dressed in the garb of a woodsman entered the West side. Twentieth Century place and calmly informed the young lady in charge that he intended to shoot himself, at the same time reaching for his pocket as if to draw a revolver. The young lady was all alone at the time and was naturally somewhat startled by the talk of the man, and while she thought the man was crazy she did not care to have him shoot himself in the lunch room and so advised him to go outside to carry out his design. This the man at first refused to do and continued to rummage in his pocket for a gun. Then the young lady informed him that he must either go out or she would have him put out and this seemed to convince the fellow that he had got into the wrong place and he left to search for more congenial quarters. His attempt proved subsequently to be only a plain jag and up to date, nothing further has been heard from him.

Mrs. John Steib visited with Mrs. F. M. Stearns on Thursday.

The Editor.
A twelve-year old boy in one of the country schools recently read an essay on "The Newspaper." The latter day youthful Solomon treats the subject thusly: "Newspapers are sheets of paper on which stuff to read is printed. The men look over the paper to see if their names are in it and the women use it to put on shelves and such. I don't know when newspapers came into the world. I don't think God does. The Bible says nothing about editors and I never heard of one being in heaven. I guess the editor is the missing link them fellers talk about. The first editor I ever heard of was the one that wrote up the flood. He has been here ever since. Some editors belong to the church and some try to raise whiskers. All of them raise hell in their neighborhood and all of them are liars, all that I know and I only know one. Editors never die. At least I never saw a dead one. Sometimes the paper dies and then people feels glad but someone starts it up again. Editors never went to school because they never got licked. Our paper is a mighty poor one but we take it so ma can put it on the pantry shelves. Our editor doesn't amount to much but pa says he had a poor chance when he was a boy. He wears no underclothes in winter; wears no socks and has a wife to support him. Pa hasn't paid his subscription in five years and don't intend to."

Strikes a Rich Find.
"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H., "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Johnson Hill & Co. and John E. Daly.

A Horrible Outbreak.
"Of large sores on my little daughter's head developed into a case of scald head" writes C. D. Isbell of Morgantown, Tenn., but Bucklen's Arnica Salve completely cured her. It's a guaranteed cure for Pimples, Tetter, Sault Rheum, Pimples, Sores, Ulcers and Piles. Only 50 cents at Johnson Hill & Co. and John E. Daly.

LOOTED A LOAD.

Grand Rapids Lumbermen Have An Unpleasant Experience.

Last Friday night a teamster in the employ of Ed. Spafford and Tom McGraw of Grand Rapids was hauling a sleigh load of camping outfit from the logging camp up at Plover to the Rapids. When on the McMill bridge he got stalled, but after procuring another team pulled the load off the bridge to the side of the road and left it there. The teamster, who appears to have tarried too long in the city when passing through, then put his team in a neighboring barn, and the following morning it was found that the load had been looted. On Saturday search warrants were issued by Justice Carpenter and a portion of the load was found at Samuel Cooper's place. The latter stated, however, that he had been engaged by the driver to care for the property. In this statement he was corroborated by the driver and so all proceedings in his case were dismissed. The load consisted of a camping outfit, including cooking utensils, blacksmith tools, clothing, etc., and was valued at about $350. The most of the goods were recovered, but that still missing consists in part of a large compass valued at $25, blankets and two satchels filled with clothing.—Stevens Point Journal.

Saved $1.12 Anyway.

A back number farmer over in Marathon county had an attack of matrimonial fever a short time ago, and concluded that he would get married if he could find a woman that would have him. He had previously been married, and met with the double misfortune, somewhat simultaneously, of losing his wife and a calf at about the same time. As a prominent characteristic of the man, it might be well to mention that he deplored the loss of the calf the more of the two. But to return to the matrimonial venture. He found a woman who was willing to place her fate in his hands, and they went over to Edgar to be married by a justice of the peace. The J. P. asked to see the license, and when told that none had been procured, said he could not marry them. The would-be groom insisted that a license was not necessary as he had previously been married without one. It didn't work, however, and he was firmly informed that it would be necessary for him to go to Wausau and procure the legal document before the nuptial noose could be thrown about the twain. The groom counted the cost of the trip to Wausau, by rail it would be $1.12—and he finally concluded that as he would have to go over about the 1st of April anyway, to pay interest, he would postpone the getting of the license until that time, and then they could be married just as well and save the cost of a trip especially for the license. Thus, while the wintry winds are sighing without, the faint heart beats time in desolation within, and two loves lie dormant with a cash credit of $1.12 to allay the disappointment.—Merrill Star.

JACKSON MILL SOLD.

Passed into Hands of Consolidated Water Power Co.

On Saturday a sale was made by which the Jackson Milling Company's property in this city became the property of the Consolidated Water Power company.

The sale includes the real estate and mill belonging to the company in the city of Grand Rapids and all the riparian rights and water frontage as well as an island in the river north of the city known as No. 9. The present company will be given about two months to close its business, when, unless another company is organized to take up the business the mill will be closed. It is possible, however, that a company will be organized for this purpose.

The sale of this property to the Consolidated company means a large step toward the settlement of the matter so that the much talked of dam can be built. It is also expected that a decision in the Nash case against the company will be rendered inside of a few weeks and that no matter how the decision is rendered it will be possible to come to a settlement so that the improvements can be prosecuted. Mr. T. E. Nash has expressed a willingness to lead his aid to a speedy settlement, and it was largely through his efforts that a deal was made between the milling company and the Water Power company, so that no further litigation is looked for from either side.

Should this matter come to a close as anticipated our people are to be congratulated, as it will mean a large amount of improvements during the next few years. Work on the proposed dam will probably be commenced this season and within a very short time.

LINE A SUCCESS.

New Toll Line has Already Proven Itself a Paying Venture.

The telephone toll line between this city, Marshfield and Pittsville has already proven to be a success from a financial point of view and the company have started to extend their connections.

It was supposed when the line was established that Marshfield, being the largest town on the system, would be the greatest user of the line, but such has not been found to be the case. Up to date Pittsville is in the lead with Grand Rapids second.

The line will be extended to Babcock and Bethel as was at first intended and in the spring a branch will be built to Progress and Vesper. The company has also purchased the line between this city and Vesper owned by Goldsberry & Bailey and in the spring this will be rebuilt and changed from a grounded line to a metallic circuit. The line between Hanson and Pittsville has also been purchased, but just what will be done with it has not been decided. It is possible that this may be changed to a "farmers" line. That is, it will be possible for farmers along the line to have phones at a low rate and they will be enabled to talk along the length of the line without extra charge further than their regular rental. This line will probably be left as a grounded line for the present at least. The buying of the Vesper line will make a toll line of this branch, but it is thought that by putting it in first class shape and making a metallic circuit of it the service will be enough better so that patrons will be willing to pay for the use of it.

That the venture has proved a success is a good thing for the public in general as well as the projectors as it will enable the latter to extend their lines and make improvements and thus give the patrons a constantly improving service.

Skidding Extraordinary.

On Monday two teamsters employed by the John Arpin Lumber company did some tall work in the line of skidding, following being the result of their labors:

John Christianson of Arpin skidded 235 logs or a total of 69,450 feet. Mick Goekey of Hanson put up 231 logs or a total of 57,620 feet.

The average of a days work is from twenty to twenty-five thousand feet of pine, so it can readily be seen that the men were busy a greater part of the day. The logs were good ones, averaging three and two-thirds logs to a thousand feet. Considerable rivalry had existed between the men for some time and it was decided to settle matters on Monday. Mr. Christianson winning out by a difference of 11,830 feet. Neither man need be ashamed of his days work, however.

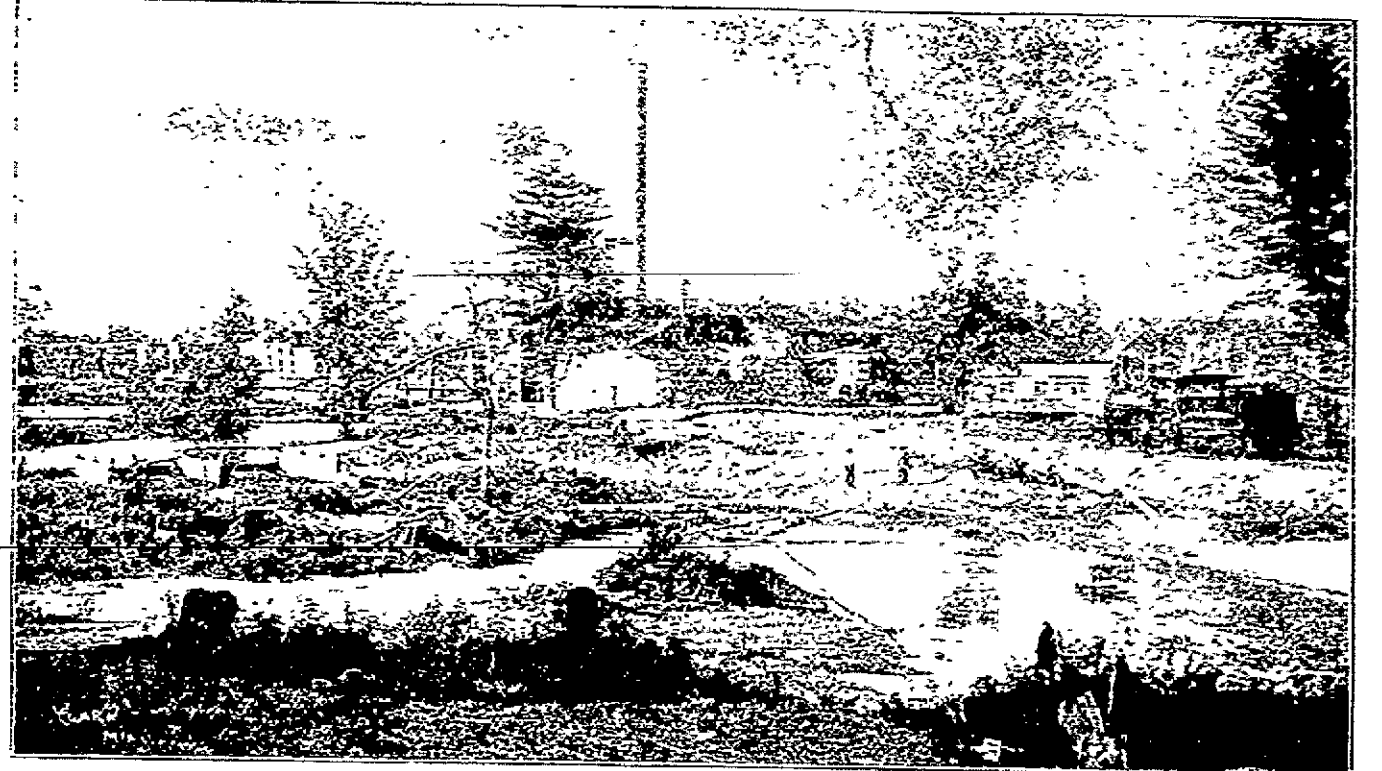

For Sale or Trade.

The undersigned offers for sale or to trade the following real and personal property: 35 acres of land near the paper mill, south Centralia, 15 acres cleared, good for strawberries or garden, good barn 44x32, chicken house, corn shed, hog pen, good well, two horses, 4 and 5 years old, 3 short horn heifers 2½ and 1 year old, 50 chickens, 200 egg incubator, 1 wagon, 1 buggy, 2 sleds, 2 heavy double harnesses, 1 light double harness, 1 single light harness, 1 mower, 1 plow and other farming implements, seed oats, potatoes, etc. Will be sold in a lump or singly. Gust Neiman, box 126, South Side.

For-Sale Cheap.

A two story frame house of four rooms and four lots 51x135, with well, woodshed, nice lawn, shade trees, etc., on Milwaukee street, can be bought for $600, on account of owner leaving town. This is worth investigating. Call at the Tribune office for further information.

ARPIN HARDWOOD LUMBER CO. MILL AT ATLANTA.

The above is a halftone picture of the Arpin Hardwood Lumber Company's mill located at Atlanta, two miles from Bruce, on the Soo line. The capacity of the mill is about 100,000 feet per day, and it is a very complete establishment, being fitted with band and resaws, heading and stave machinery and has lath and shingle departments. There is also a planing mill and all the machinery for turning out a high grade of hardwood flooring, and there are dry kilns. The mill employs about 150 hands and there is enough timber tributary to the plant to operate it for thirty years.

During the past winter the Arpins have been doing some extensive logging operations at Bruce, Arpin and Kennan, the aggregate of their output at these points being something over 30,000,000 feet of pine and hardwood logs. At Bruce there have been three camps going and they have put in about 10,000,000 feet. At Kennan two camps have been operated with an output of 6,000,000, while at Arpin there is about 14,000,000 feet of logs, largely high grade pine. At Arpin there will probably be only one more season's work, but a large amount of the land owned by the company is being bought up by settlers and much of the land brings from $12 to $15 per acre. The building of the North-western road near this point has also added to the sales of late.

The company has a Decker log loading machine in use at their northern stations that has proven a great institution. It is built so that the logs are handled by steam and very expeditiously, and the machine can also be used as a steam shovel or a pile driver. The machine cost the company $5,000, but has proven so useful in the work they have to do that the investment is considered a profitable one. A telephone line is also in course of construction from Chippewa Falls to Bruce and the company has taken a fourth interest in this enterprise. Settlers are also rapidly coming in near Bruce and the Arpin company has sold considerable land to home seekers. The soil is a light clay loam and thought to be peculiarly adapted to the raising of tobacco. The company has established an experimental farm near Bruce, which is in charge of M. T. A. Rideout. By this method the company hopes to demonstrate what crops can be profitably raised on the land there and thus be of assistance to settlers who come from some other state and are not conversant with the peculiarities of the soil in that part of Wisconsin.

The company has about seven miles of railroad built, which starts at Bruce and running through Atlanta, two miles distant, continues in a northerly direction through the company's land.

During the past winter the company has had in its employ about 650 men, and while work has been plentiful and wages good the men have pretty generally shown a disposition to stay at work.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

About one o'clock Monday night the house of James Welch on High street was discovered to be on fire and the structure was entirely consumed, and only a small portion of the furniture in the dwelling was saved.

The public was apprized of the fire by the blowing of the electric light plant whistle, but before the fire company had arrived on the scene the entire building was a mass of flames and nothing could be done toward saving the structure. A high wind prevailed at the time and the weather was bitter cold and it was therefore very difficult for the fire department to work, but there were no other buildings near enough to cause any danger. It is not known how the fire originated and it had gained considerable headway before discovered, so that only a part of the furniture could be removed. There was an insurance of $1000 on the building and contents.

The building was one of the oldest in town, having been erected in 1856, so that the loss on the structure is fully covered by the insurance. As Mr. Welch is a poor man with a large family he can ill afford to stand the loss of his furniture.

There was some criticism regarding the time it took the fire brigade to make their appearance on the scene of operations, but this is usual in the case of volunteer companies and can only be expected where the fire alarm system is as crude as here. It is certain that had there been any buildings in close proximity to the burning structure there would have been great difficulty in protecting them from the flames.

Candidates for County Judge.

Attorney Wm. J. Conway of this city has announced himself as a non-partisan candidate for the office of county judge. Mr. Conway is an exceptionally bright young man who is well known to the people of this city and county, and there is no doubt of his ability to acceptably fill the position should he be elected. Mr. Conway is a graduate of our high school and later graduated from the state university and law school. Since his graduation from the latter he has practiced his profession in this city and has proven himself to be worthy the confidence of the people. William has many friends in this vicinity who will be glad of the chance to show their appreciation of his ability by voting for him. The only other aspirant to the office is Judge John A. Gaynor, the present incumbent. Both men are thoroughly competent and reliable.

Farm for Sale or Exchange.

Farm known as the Fred Podawiltz place, on Four Mile creek at county line, 187 acres of land including 80 acres of hay marsh, 60 acres cleared, good buildings, good fences, plenty of wood and good pasture. Convenient location, six miles from Grand Rapids. EDWARD LYNCH.

The senior German class takes up this term Goethe's "Herman und Dorothea," which will keep them busy until the close of school.

Tuition for spring term is now due. Please secure your certificates of admission as soon as possible.

Miss Letty Courtney visited school last Monday morning and Miss Goldie Short Tuesday afternoon.

CHAPTER XI.

It was at the close of a day which had appeared to Alice longer and more lonely than usual, that her uncle entered her sitting, with an open letter in his hand.

"Is it from home?" said his wife, who still fondly gave that appellation to her native land.

"Yes," he replied; "it is from my widow sister, Deborah Ellison."

"No bad news, I hope," said Mrs. Watworth, noting that her husband looked graver even than usual.

"Yes; the angel of death has entered her dwelling, and taken one of her daughters."

"Which one?"

"Elizabeth, and she is alone now."

"But where is Rebecca?"

"Married, and many miles distant. She bears that she will give her Alice for a year, whose presence, she thinks, will cheer her spirits, and help to restore her health."

A shade for a few moments dimmed the brightness of Mrs. Watworth's countenance.

"How can we spare her?" said she.

"Do we need her presence as much as Deborah does?" Mr. Watworth inquired, in an accent which carried with it a degree of reproach.

"I think we don't, yet her going or remaining is not a question for us to decide. Would you like to go, Alice?"

"If it were not for leaving you, I should," replied Alice, slightly coloring, for she thought of Harleigh, and the long time which must elapse before she could hope to see him again, unless she complied with the request of Mrs. Ellison.

The subject was now dropped, and Alice sat apparently calm, while her uncle and aunt kept up a desultory conversation. But when she was in her own room she gave way to a burst of tears produced by a strange mingling of joy and sorrow.

"Miss Alice!"

Alice started a little, and looking round, saw Silas Watkins.

"Good morning, Silas," said she, with a smile. "It is a long time since I saw you."

"I've been gone on a short fishing voyage. I meant to see you before I went, but I had to go away so sudden that I had no convenient chance."

"Why?"

"If you think it isn't taking too much liberty, I should like to ask you a question."

"By no means."

"Well, then, I should like to have you tell me if you ever gave a trinket, which was fastened to a blue ribbon you wore round your neck, to that proud Englishwoman, Mildred Dacres?"

"I never did. Why do you wish to know?"

"You know Hitty Chessman, the pretty housemaid that used to live at your uncle's, has for a number of months past, been at Mr. Wyndham's, where Mildred Dacres made it her home, before she went to England?"

"Yes."

"Well, one day she had been to see her mother. She was on her way back, and sat down on a rock close to a clump of willows. She hadn't been there long before she heard voices, and peeping through the willows, she saw Mildred Dacres and Gilbert Falkland. When they had arrived right off against where she sat, she saw Miss Dacres take something from her pocket and give it to Falkland. They talked a little, while Falkland examined it, and that gave her a chance to see that it was a trinket fastened to a blue ribbon, which she was very certain she had seen you wear."

"What did Mildred say?"

"She couldn't make out all that she said, she spoke so low, but she heard enough to make her think that it wasn't by any fair means she came by it. And then, again, she said she knew pretty well that you set too great a store by it to give it away."

"O, why did Mildred do that?"

"It was for no good purpose, you may be certain of that. Mildred Dacres is a wicked woman. If you had only seen the icy glitter in her eyes, as I did once, you never would have trusted her. I have faced Indians and wild beasts, without her courage ever failing me; but that look of hers made me shudder, and somehow took all my courage away, just as if a serpent had looked me in the eye, that I knew was going to spring upon me and coil round my neck the very next minute, without my having any means to prevent it."

Alice had, on one or two occasions, caught a mere gleam of what Silas Watkins had designated as the icy glitter, and the emotions inspired by it were far from being pleasant, and in a slight degree even resembled those he had described.

"Farewell, Silas," said she, giving him her hand. "I thank you for your counsel, and shall remember it."

As Alice turned into the path which led towards home, Silas drew the back of his hand across his eyes.

"That girl," said he, as he stood watching her till a turn in the path hid her from view, "as my wife and I have often said, comes nearer to my idea of an angel than any person I ever saw walk the earth, and I've heard Hitty Looney say the same."

That evening it was decided that Alice should go to England, and immediate preparations were made for her departure.

CHAPTER XII.

Mrs. Ellison, Mrs. Watworth's sister, resided in a respectable quarter of the great British metropolis. Leaden clouds had all day darkened the autumn sky, so that though only a little after 5 o'clock, candles had been brought into the apartment where Mrs. Ellison was sitting in an uncomfortable looking, high-backed chair, with some plain sewing resting on her lap.

She had been sitting thus ten or fifteen minutes when a little bustle was heard without; the door was opened by a staid serving man, and a young, bright face looked into the heavy, dull apartment. It almost seemed to Mrs. Ellison that a gust of sunshine had been let into the room.

"Alice, you remind me of Elizabeth," said she, taking the lovely girl by the hand and leading her forward into the room.

Alice, who saw in her pale, sedate countenance a resemblance to her uncle, whom she loved, longed to throw herself in her arms, but the reserve of her manners and her repelled her. She searched in vain for a single ray of the warm and genial light which so brightened and at the same time softened the countenance of her aunt Esther.

Mrs. Ellison assisted Alice to divest herself of her cloak and hood, and then pointing to a chair near the fire, requested her to be seated. As Alice answered her questions relative to her brother and sister-in-law, and her home in the new world, she could not forbear wondering, as she looked round the gloomy apartment, how the light of the young life which had so recently gone out beneath the same roof could have been so bright and so golden as it was described to be in a letter written to her aunt by Edward Ellison, before his sister had been stricken by disease.

As this thought came into her mind, a servant entered and laid the table for three persons.

"It will be snugger and more comfortable to take our evening meal here than in the hall," remarked Mrs. Ellison.

Alice glanced at the table, and could not imagine whom the third plate could be for.

"My son came home yesterday," said Mrs. Ellison.

Alice looked surprised for Mrs. Ellison had alluded to him in her letter, saying that he had been absent more than a year, and expected to remain where he was a year longer.

"He came unexpectedly," said she. "Some business required his presence. As soon as he has attended to it, he will return."

At this moment the door opened, and a young man, in the plain garb of the sect to which he belonged, entered the apartment. Alice was struck with his graceful and noble bearing. His features were finely chiseled, and his rich, glossy hair was not so closely cut but that it showed its natural tendency to fall round his forehead, which was broad and very white, in free, wavy curls. His eyes, which were the changeable hazel, were bright, beaming, and intellectual. At times they exhibited a singular sweetness of expression, rarely seen in connection with those traits of countenance full of character, which may be considered the perfection of manly beauty.

"My son," said Mrs. Ellison, turning to Alice, "and this, Edward, is Alice Dale, the orphan you have heard me mention, who, since she was three years old, has been my brother Nathan's ward."

Edward Ellison welcomed her in a manner so cordial and respectful that at once inspired confidence.

"If mother had told me that she was expecting you," said he, "I would have gone for you myself, instead of having a servant sent."

"You know, Edward, that you have a cold," his mother hastened to say, "and it would have been unwise for you to expose yourself to this damp air."

When they had taken their places at the table, Edward Ellison said grace, which, without being extended to one of those long prayers which on similar occasions the Puritans often felt themselves called upon to make, was reverent, comprehensive and appropriate. At its close, Mrs. Ellison gave her son a look, as if she thought he had been too sparing of time and words.

"We are taught that we shall not be heard for our much speaking," said he, in answer to her look.

Alice scarcely noticed the quality of the food that was before her. Even the remarks of Edward Ellison, which showed a rare delicacy of perception, joined to a liberal well-stored mind, could not prevent her thoughts from wandering to Clarence Harleigh.

At that very moment, she thought, he might be within fifteen minutes' walk of her, and yet she felt that, situated as she now was, amid the whirl and eddying tides of the great city, the broad Atlantic itself had scarcely formed a more insuperable obstacle to any chance meeting.

She knew that in the letter from her guardian to his sister, of which she was the bearer, Mrs. Ellison was requested to make use of such restrictions as would be likely to prevent her and Harleigh from being thrown together.

Clarence Harleigh and Gilbert Falkland, the night they left the banqueting hall, were conducted by a pursuivant at arms to the shore of the Thames. A boat was in waiting, where were stationed several men of the guard and the requisite complement of watermen to take them to the Tower. Though they had received a hint that their imprisonment would be short, it was in no enviable frame of mind that they took their places in the boat, which they were careful should be as remote from each other as the space would permit.

Swiftly propelled by the strong arms of the watermen, it was not long ere they were in the shadow of the gloomy structure, which loomed up dimly in the darkness and obscurity of night. Soon passing beneath the low and dismal arch that had so often cast its ominous shadow on the heads of the brave, the beautiful and the innocent as well as of those who were stained with crime, the boat was brought close to the steps, against which the indolent waves broke, with a sullen murmur. Here the Lieutenant of the Tower stood ready to conduct them to the separate apartments which had been prepared for them.

"This is the chamber assigned to you," said he, addressing Falkland, his voice half lost in the harsh grating of the bolt as it shoved back.

"I should like to have Redding, my valet, sent me early in the morning," said Falkland as he entered the apartment.

"He shall be sent you," was the answer.

The room to which Harleigh was conducted differed little from Falkland's. It was, perhaps, a little larger and a little gloomier, while the walls were inscribed with the names of many an unhappy prisoner whose last and only guest from the dark prison-house was to the sea-ford.

Falkland had just risen the next morning when the warden admitted his valet.

"Ned Redding," said he, "step this way."

The valet obeyed, though without manifesting any great alacrity.

"You are surprised to see me here, I suppose?"

Judging by Redding's looks, he was not in the least surprised. His answer, however, was sufficiently courteous.

"It is," said he, "where many of the first gentlemen in the land have been before you."

"True, and with little or no expectation of ever regaining their liberty, while I shall be free again in a few days. Did you ever notice the little shop kept by Jeduthun, the Jew?"

"I have," I remember of going there for you once, before you went to America."

"Yes; you went to hire me a masquerade dress. Look at this."

"It appears to me to be a piece of green glass. Can it be worth anything?"

"Yes, more than a thousand times its weight in gold," and he held it in the sunshine that came into one of the windows, to bring into play its rich and vivid colors.

"It must be as you say. I never saw so magnificent a jewel."

"You must take it to the Jew, and with it, hand him this piece of paper, on which I have written the sum I expect him to give me for it."

"What if he should refuse?"

"There will be little danger of that. A single glance at the gem will show him that what I demand is only two-thirds its real value."

In a few minutes, the warden entered with the prisoner's morning meal, and the valet, having been instructed by Falkland to make what haste he could, withdrew, and beat his steps towards the shop of Jeduthun, the Jew. It was in a narrow, dirty street, occupying the front portion of a mean-looking building.

As Redding entered the shop, he caught a glimpse of a young and beautiful woman, as she disappeared through an opposite door. He handed the Jew the opal, which she started a little at sight of it, and eyed him rather keenly.

"What sent this?" he asked.

"That will tell you," replied Redding, and he put the piece of paper into Jeduthun's hand, given him by Falkland.

"It is well," said he, when he had read it. "The gentleman spoke to me about a gem he wished to dispose of, but gave no description of it."

"My master told me he had written the price he demanded on the piece of paper I gave you."

"He has, and I will give it."

Without saying more, the Jew counted the money and handed it to Redding. Having secured it about his person, he lingered a minute as if he wished to say something more, but finally turning abruptly away, left the shop. He had no sooner gone than the Jew took the opal from the drawer where he had deposited it and carefully examined it once more.

"It is the same I gave to Abi, as a birthday gift, three years ago, which soon afterward she lost," said he, speaking to himself.

He then carefully enclosed it in a packet, which he put in his pocket.

The Learned Astronomer.

I knew a learned astronomer
Who all things earthly spurned,
And wandered through this pleasant land
With countenance upturned.

From early youth his habits were
To hold aloof from men;
He thought this old world's happenings
But little worth his ken.

He saw no wonders in the trees
Or in the waving grass—
He never thought it worth his while
To woo a pretty lass.

And not a whit this good man cared
For potencies or popes;
To him the greatest man was he
Who made the telescope.

But sun and moon arose and set
Precisely when he said;
He knew whence each comet came
And where each comet fled.

And for his plan to wipe the spots
From off the glorious sun,
Among the brethren of his ilk
He much renown had won.

This good soul died and went on high,
But much to his concern
He found the knowledge gleaned while
He lived.

Left nothing more to learn,
With telescope from over a pond,
He now peers down to earth,
And finds out strange and wondrous things.

Rapid Eating.

Let the rapid eater remember that he is organized to be a man, and therefore has no internal grist mill. He is not organized for a goose, to use a school girl phrase. People often deserve the name of goose by eating too rapidly and carelessly, breaking down the health. Rapid eating is also conducive to overeating. There seems to be no excuse for a farmer hurrying his meals, but many of them bolt down their food as fast as they can with a knife, and lie around for an hour afterward.

CHINESE EMPEROR DECIDES TO RETURN.

Will Arrive in Peking Latter Part of March—Smallpox in Allied Troops.

London, March 4.—The Peking correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, telegraphing March 2, says: "The Emperor will return to Peking at the end of March. A bodyguard is already assembled at Sian Fu."

"The foreign ministers have demanded the death of twelve additional high officials and the punishment of ninety provincial mandarins."

"Smallpox has broken out among the allied troops."

NO SECRET TREATIES.

Germany Agrees Fully with United States Regarding Concessions by China.

Berlin, March 4.—Ambassador White's conference with the German foreign office continued during last week. The correspondent of the Associated Press learns upon excellent authority that these conferences are due to fuller and more definite instructions just received by Mr. White from Washington concerning the threatened land-grabbing in China.

Germany agrees fully with the United States that no secret concessions should be made by China to any foreign power, but that all concessions should be strictly confined to grants for diplomatic and ordinary commercial purposes, and made above board and through treaties signed by all the powers.

It is believed in German official circles that Russia will not insist upon China's signing a secret treaty, since the other powers have so vigorously protested against such action.

STRIKE IN BROOKLYN.

Entire Street Railway System Tied Up—Police Held in Reserve All Night.

New York, March 4.—A general order was received by the commanding officers of all precincts in Manhattan and Brooklyn last night from Deputy Commissioner of Police Deroy directing that all policemen entitled to go home after midnight be held in reserve. The policemen, it was said, are held in readiness for any trouble that might occur in Brooklyn as the result of a strike, which it is said the employees of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company would inaugurate.

The entire street railway system of Brooklyn was tied up by strike at 1 o'clock this morning.

NAVAL OFFICERS RETIRE.

Rear Admiral Hichborn, Who was Head of Construction, and Pay Inspector Colby.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—Two prominent naval officers were placed on the retired list today by operation of the law on account of age. They are Rear-Admiral Philip C. Hichborn, who has been chief of the bureau of construction and repair for the past eight years, and Pay Inspector H. C. Colby, one of the ranking officers of the pay corps. Paymaster Inspector Colby is a native of Vermont and entered the navy as an acting assistant paymaster in 1863. He reached the highest grade in the corps in April, 1899. His last service was at the naval pay office in Baltimore.

HEADING OFF DEWET.

Was Moving on Philadelphia, but Kitcheners' Troops Were Watchful.

London, March 4.—A dispatch from Gen. Kitcheners, dated Pretoria, March 4, says: "Dewet was moving on Philadelphia, but was headed by our troops and is now marching on Pauresmish."

"Babington has dug up a Krupp, a pom-pom and some ammunition at Landfontein."

Sixteen men of the Victorian rifles have captured thirty-three Boers and 50 horses at Sea Cow river.

Gen. Darnell has captured a Hotchkiss near Pieterfist.

"Surrenders continue in that district. Over fifty men with a command came in March 2."

BIG WAREHOUSE BURNS.

Four-Story Structure at Washington Destroyed—Loss is About $100,000.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The warehouse of the Knox Express company, a four-story structure at the corner of Four-and-a-Half and C streets, northwest, was destroyed by fire early this (Monday) morning. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

ATTACKED EX-MONK.

Infuriated Mob Storms Lecturer's Platform in the Isle of Wight.

London, March 4.—An infuriated mob at Shanklin, Isle of Wight, yesterday stormed the platform from which the ex-monk, Victor Huthben, was delivering an anti-Catholic lecture. Huthben drew a revolver and kept his assailants at bay for a time, but finally turned and fled. During his flight a bullet was discharged which grazed the neck and caused from the cheek of one of his pursuers. Huthben was arrested.

BULGARIAN CABINET.

Coalition Ministry Made Up of Representatives of Two Russo-Phil Parties.

Sofia, March 4.—A coalition cabinet of the two Russophil parties has been formed. M. Karseloff takes the premier-ship and the finance portfolio; M. Danoff, the foreign portfolio, and M. Paprikoff that of war. The Sobranje has been summoned to meet March 7.

KILLED HIS STEPMOTHER.

Crime Committed at Baltimore by William Glenn Taylor.

Baltimore, Md., March 4.—William Glenn Taylor, of Washington shot and killed his stepmother, Mrs. Marion Taylor, in a lodging house. The husband of the woman is Charles Taylor, of Washington, a veteran of the Civil war, and they had come from that city for a visit. Taylor asked the woman whether his father was at home, and on her replying that she did not know he pulled a revolver and fired two shots, both of which struck her in the right side of the head. She fell to the floor with a groan and expired.

The murderer coolly placed the revolver in his pocket and disappeared.

CONGRESS.

House.

Wednesday, March 27.—Day spent in consideration of various conference reports. Reports on the Cuban and Philippine amendments to the tariff and military academy bills, the latter containing anti-hazing legislation, were agreed to. Naval bill was sent back to conference after defeat of a motion to occur in the Senate's provision for three more submarine torpedo boats. St. Louis fair bill was sent to conference for a settlement of differences.

Thursday, Feb. 28.—Conference report on the war revenue reduction bill adopted without division. Final reports on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bills were adopted. The major part of the day was devoted to the bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutters. Although the bill is a House measure, its friends were very persistent, and in the face of many difficulties hung about it, it was finally passed by a vote of 157 to 100.

Friday, March 1.—Day spent in consideration of the Cuban and Philippine amendments to the tariff and military academy bills, the latter containing anti-hazing legislation, were agreed to. Naval bill was sent back to conference after defeat of a motion to occur in the Senate's provision for three more submarine torpedo boats. St. Louis fair bill was sent to conference for a settlement of differences.

Saturday, March 2.—Throughout today the House was in the throes of the closing hours of the session, with many of the galleries looking down upon the weary legislators. Work began at 10 a. m., and proceeded until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

When a recess was taken until 9:30 p. m. to permit conference reports to be framed. During the session, the House passed several important bills, including those for a national standardizing bureau, for conferring bronze medals on the enlisted men of the navy and the army, and to amend the Chinese exclusion laws and the omnibus building bill. The legislative appropriation bill was also passed, and many other measures were advanced. The Senate bill to prohibit the sale of firearms, opium and intoxicating liquors in certain States was defeated by a vote of 117 to 79, two-thirds not having voted in the affirmative. When the public building bill was called up, Mr. Bailey demanded a second reading, which was ordered. It was then reported that if he had known how widely and judiciously the "pork" in his bill had been distributed, he would not have attempted to head it off. The bill was passed without division. At 5 o'clock the House took a recess until 9:30 in the evening. At that time the House resumed its session, and the galleries were given to routine business and a number of bills were passed. At 10:20 the House took a recess until 10:30 p. m.

Sunday, March 2.—When the House, at 2 o'clock, took up its work, Mr. Grosvenor (Ohio), from the committee on rules, presented a special order to provide for the ten minutes' debate it should be in order to more concurrence in the Senate amendments to the river and harbor bill and to authorize the construction of a canal through the State of Ohio.

Twenty minutes on a bill were allowed under the rule. The special order was finally adopted. The Senate amendments were nonconcurrent in was sent to conference. Messrs. Burton, Reeves (Ill.) and Catherings (Miss.) were appointed conferees. Mr. Cannon presented a partial conference report on the bill for the appropriation bill, disposing of all the minor issues, but leaving in dispute the items for the three exhibitions, for the purchase of the old Corcoran Art gallery in Washington, $22,000; the appropriation of $3,000,000 for a memorial bridge across the Potomac at Washington, and the purchase of the land for the irrigation amendments, and by a vote of 117 to 79, the amendments were rejected. The memorial bridge, Mr. Alexander (N. Y.) moved to recede and concur in the amendment carrying $3,000,000 for the purchase of the land for the irrigation amendments, and by a vote of 117 to 79, the amendments were rejected. The memorial bridge, Mr. Alexander (N. Y.) moved to recede and concur in the amendment carrying $3,000,000 for the purchase of the land for the irrigation amendments, and by a vote of 117 to 79, the amendments were rejected.

Monday, March 4.—The House closed its session at 11:45 amid a demonstration from its members following the delivery of an address by Mr. Speaker Cannon. For an hour the body had been in the throes of dissolution with little business to perform. The galleries were almost empty, for there were too many stars and senses without the building and too many regulations on admission to permit an overflow of members. Here and there on the desks of members were great clusters of flowers, paying farewell tribute to their services. Shortly before the closing hour Mr. Richardson Prentiss, the minority leader, presented resolutions restricting the members of the House for the able, impartial and dignified manner in which Speaker Cannon had administered the duties of his office. Coming from a minority, there was added significance in the tribute. The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and the House adjourned at 11:45 and announced the sessions of the House for the Fifty-sixth Congress adjourned.

ASK FOR COMMISSION.

Marshfield Is Dissatisfied with Last Assessment.

Marshfield News: The committee appointed by the common council some weeks ago to investigate the apportionment of taxes as made by the county board, made a report to the council last Monday evening, as follows:

To the Mayor and Board of Aldermen: Your committee to whom was referred the last apportionment of taxes as made by county board of equalization, beg leave to report:

That without imputing to the board of equalization any intention to discriminate against the city of Marshfield, we are of the opinion that a decided injustice was done to this city in said last apportionment of taxes. It seems that assessment at full value of property does not mean the same thing in different places and the board of equalization was probably unwilling to believe that our local assessment was on as high a range of values as was actually the case.

Your committee also are of the opinion that the board of equalization failed to place a proper estimate upon a very large amount of property owned by large manufacturing plants in the southern part of the county. These plants have a value about equal to the full value of the real property of the city of Marshfield, and their partial and almost total exemption from taxation, and the inadequate estimate of them by the board of equalization, is a decided injustice to this city, and has the effect of throwing upon our community a burden of taxation which does not rightly belong to us.

We, therefore, advise that the city attorney be instructed to apply to the circuit court for the appointment of commissioners as provided by law, for a revision of the last equalization of taxes as made by the county board.

Dated Feb. 28th, 1901.
W. H. RODDIS,
M. G. FLECKENSTEIN,
E. C. POSS.

Committee.

The council thereupon passed the following resolution, which was offered by Alderman Roddis:

Be it Resolved, By the mayor and common council of the city of Marshfield, that feeling aggrieved by the action or decision of the county board of supervisors of Wood county, in regard to the equalization of the valuation of the real estate in said county, which was made in the year 1900, under section No. 1073 of the revised statutes of the state of Wisconsin, do hereby instruct and authorize the city attorney of the city of Marshfield to make application to the circuit judge of the county of Wood for the appointment of three commissioners to review such action or decision and to examine and determine what sum upon the one hundred dollars should be added to or deducted from the aggregate valuation of real property as was made by such county board in order to produce a just relation between all the valuations of the real property in said county according as such city may be aggrieved as to real property, according to the provisions of section 1077a of the revised statutes of the state of Wisconsin.

Advancement Meeting.

There was a meeting of the Wisconsin Valley Advancement association at Merrill on Thursday of last week and while the meeting was not very largely attended owing to many of the members being detained elsewhere by business, there seems to have been considerable enthusiasm displayed by those present.

One of the principal matters discussed was the proposed electric railway between the village of Nekosia and Eagle River. One of the most enthusiastic ones for this project is Wm. Bradley, the lumber king of Tomahawk. This gentleman thinks that the plan would not only be feasible but that it would prove a paying investment for capital. A letter was read by one of the members present from a New York broker which stated that the capital for the road was forthcoming, all the projectors asking being that the towns in the valley give the road the support it would be entitled to.

The letter was received by Mr. Plummer of Wausau and after reading it he said:

"It seems to me that this proposition from these moneyed men of New York is a fair one and the owner our people co-operate in pushing this matter to a successful culmination, just that much sooner will our future welfare become defined. I know the scheme is a feasible one and I want you newspaper men to impress it upon your people. I have traversed this river on lumber rafts when Merrill was but a few scattered shanties—she was Jenny Bull then. I know this river as well as I know your main streets and I helped to survey them. Mr. Bradley and I have seen this valley grow from its infancy and now in the heyday of its youth we hope for its grand future. Let the people of Merrill, of Wausau, and of all the cities from Nekosia to Eagle River rise up and say, 'We will have this valley electric road,' and then we will have it."

It was decided that the March meeting of the association be dispensed with in order to allow absent members sufficient time to return. The next meeting will be held at Tomahawk in April.

—FARM FOR SALE.—A one hundred and twenty acre farm located about three miles from this city on the Rudolph road. A good dwelling house on same. For particulars write to Mrs. P. Walsh, Eagle River, Wis.

Ordinance No. 73.

An ordinance determining the number of Justices of the Peace within the city of Grand Rapids, Wood county, Wisconsin.

The common council of the city of Grand Rapids, do ordain as follows: SECTION 1. Pursuant to subdivision 23 of section 925 of Wisconsin statutes of 1898 and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, the common council of the said city of Grand Rapids, do hereby determine that there shall be two (2) justices of the peace for the said city of Grand Rapids.

SECTION 2. It is hereby further determined that one of the said justices of the peace shall be elected each year and that they shall hold their office for a term of two years as provided by subdivision 26 of section 925, Wisconsin statutes of 1898 and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto.

SECTION 3. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

On Wednesday a man dressed in the garb of a woodsman entered the West side Twentieth Century place and calmly informed the young lady in charge that he intended to shoot himself at the same time reaching for his pocket as if to draw a revolver. The young lady was all alone at the time and was naturally somewhat startled by the talk of the man, and while she thought the man was crazy she did not care to have him shoot himself in the lunch room and so advised him to go outside to carry out his design. This man at first refused to do and continued to rumage in his pocket for a gun. Then the young lady informed him that he must either go out or she would have him put out and this seemed to convince the fellow that he had got into the wrong place and he left to search for more congenial quarters. His ailment proved subsequently to be only a plain jag and up to date, nothing further has been heard from him.

The Editor.

A twelve-year old boy in one of the country schools recently read an essay on "The Newspaper." The latter day youthful Solomon treats the subject thusly: "Newspapers are sheets of paper on which stuff to read is printed. The men look over the paper to see if their names are in it and the women use it to put on shelves and such. I don't know when newspapers came into the world. I don't think God does. The Bible says nothing about editors and I never heard of one being in heaven. I guess the editor is the missing link them fellers talk about. The first editor I ever heard of was the one that wrote up the flood. He has been here ever since. Some editors belong to the church and some try to raise whippers. All of them raise hell in their neighborhood and all of them are liars, all that I know and I only know one. Editors never die. At least I never saw a dead one. Sometimes the paper dies and then people feels glad but someone starts it up again. Editors never went to school because they never got licked. Our paper is a mighty poor one but we take it so ma can put it on the pantry shelves. Our editor doesn't amount to much but pa says he had a poor chance when he was a boy. He wears no underclothes in winter; wears no socks and has a wife to support him. Pa hasn't paid his subscription in five years and don't intend to."

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H., "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Johnson Hill & Co. and John E. Daly.

A Horrible Outbreak.

"Of large sores on my little daughter's head developed into a case of scald head," writes D. Isbill of Morganton, Tenn., "but Bucklen's Arnica Salve completely cured her. It's a guaranteed cure for Eczema, Ulcers, Sault Rheum, Pimples, Sores, Tetter and Piles. Only 50 cents at Johnson Hill & Co. and John E. Daly.

LOOTED A LOAD.

Grand Rapids Lumbermen Have An Unpleasant Experience.

Last Friday night a teamster in the employ of Ed. Spafford and Tom McGraw of Grand Rapids was hauling a sleigh load of camping outfit from the logging camp up at Plover to the Rapids. When on the McMill bridge he got stalled, but after procuring another team pulled the load off the bridge to the side of the road and left it there. The teamster, who appears to have tarried too long in the city when passing through, then put his team in a neighboring barn, and the following morning it was found that the load had been looted. On Saturday search warrants were issued by Justice Carpenter and a portion of the load was found at Samuel Cooper's place. The latter stated, however, that he had been engaged by the driver to care for the property. In this statement he was corroborated by the driver and so all proceedings in his case were dismissed. The load consisted of a camping outfit, including cooking utensils, blacksmith tools, clothing, etc., and was valued at about $350. The most of the goods were recovered, but that still missing consists in part of a large compass valued at $25, blankets and two satchels filled with clothing.—Stevens Point Journal.

Saved $1.12 Anyway.

A back number farmer over in Marathon county had an attack of matrimonial fever a short time ago, and concluded that he would get married if he could find a woman that would have him. He had previously been married, and met with the double misfortune, somewhat simultaneously, of losing his wife and a calf at about the same time. As a prominent characteristic of the man, it might be well to mention that he deplored the loss of the calf the more of the two. But to return to the matrimonial venture. He found a woman who was willing to place her fate in his hands, and they went over to Edgar to be married by a justice of the peace. The J. P. asked to see the license, and when told that none had been procured, said he could not marry them. The would-be groom insisted that a license was not necessary as he had previously been married without one. It didn't work, however, and he was firmly informed that it would be necessary for him to go to Wausau and procure the legal document before the connubial noose could be thrown about the twain. The groom counted the cost of the trip to Wausau,—by rail it would be $1.12—and he finally concluded that as he would have to go over about the 1st of April anyway, to pay interest, he would postpone the getting of the license until that time, and then they could be married just as well and save the cost of a trip especially for the license. Thus, while the wintry winds are sighing without, the faint heart beats time in desolation within, and two loves lie dormant with a cash credit of $1.12 to allay the disappointment.—Merrill Star.
